THE importance of the Shan Shin Fan case, as it at present stands, thanks to the absurd action of the Executive in issuing the notifica-Chinese Gazette, deserves attention. It ap- about the "Shan Shin Fan " boing taker keep the defendant under custody until he the very opposite effect to that desired, as the action of the mob. This will at least be of the peace. When the stories got about proof it is of the atter mismanagement which The Government cannot plead and over again have we called attention to entangled, and in which in the m the complete rottenness of the system; and adopted they could do no possible good to the manner in which we were relying upon a straw, in delegating the management of the whole of the Chinese affairs of the Colony to the inexperienced officials who have been placed at the Head of the Registrar General's Department, and we have as repeatedly posated out the results which must inevitably follow the system persistently maintained, namely, that riot of some kind would arise. As long, however, as affairs went on smoothy very little attention was paid to these remarks, which were put down as being simply visionary or sensational Yet the experience of other places where a Chinese community has to be dealt with was amply sufficient to show that under such a system as that adopted in Hongkong, disturbances would be certain to arise moment that any anything occurred to make the mob disposed to outrage. The masses must have been very unobservant indeed if during the past three of four years they did not discover that they had practically got the best of the authorities. Even foreigners, who have far less opportunity of obtaining correct information; on such points than the natives. have had repeated and startling proof that the Police had become so utterly disorganised by the district watchman and private runner system, that it was quite unable to get at reliable information as to anything going on in the Colony. To the natives knowing all the details of what takes place among their fellow countrymen, this must have been thoroughly obvious; and such a state of things being known to Chinese, it may be taken as more than probable that the dangerous classes will daily become bolder and more defant. Combined in ageret Societies numbering among their members many men of apparent respectability, and intirabble in China and in this "respect there is no difference in Hongkong baye of the actual knowledge that the crimes were always been able, and accustomed to ex the same, and told the ercise a powerful influence upon their authorities. The system in vogue in the Chinese Protectorate Department, where a number of native employes hold a kind of semi-official position, in which their powers are certain to be overestimated by the masses, and are leave the fact to the jury. He recollected headed by foreigners whom circumstances have frequently shown to be far too ready to take advice from the natives under them, is of all others the arrangement best calculated to foster the evils naturally inherent in a Chiness Community. Encouraged by finding their, power steadily increasing, they have gradually been working towards a point of self assertion where it would require very little to make them break-out into open debance of authority. The impetus required was given by the machinations of those who have of late been spreading the nonsensical rumours about the Shan Shin Fan; and was not at all: surprising to find symptoms of a demonstration when the case came on for hearing, and little more savprising that those symptoms should culminate in the diagraceful demonstration of Wednesday afternoon. The whole affair was in point of fact entirely in | certainty of the law, that it would be very hard order according to the traditional Chinese system, and was precisely what was to be expected in a Colony where we have allowed even in the last resert .- This judgment was reourselves, so far he information concerning ferred to and approved of by Justice Maule in the natives is concerned, to become dependent upon one official, who from the very nature tion that everyone knows the law, and after of his position is likely to be much influenced | quoting Lord Manafield, added that the by the natives in his office, and who, we have had abundant proof bas often been so influenced to a very undestrable extent. Mr. May, with his usual good sense, dismissed it, as it was clear no charge of attempted poisoning could be established. It was just one of those beautiful Chinese cases in which it is simply impossible to come to any conclusion whatwas trumped up against the accused, on account, as he alleged, of some attempted robaccused, that of going without any object strangers, and in such a manner as to bring suspicion such as a man would not wish to incur at any time, and peculiarly to be avoided when rumours were going about. To commit such an act of folly would certainly be an extreme ease of doing a thing where there was everything to lose and literally nothing to gain; and thus, prima facie, all that can be gathered from the evidence is that there is almost a morel certainty that it is essentially false Of course, wather become landed in the usual point of difficulty with regard to all matters of this kind among the Chinese, that of dis- on the coolie trade.

Covering what could be the object of trumping up such a story. All experience proves that it is quite useless to wasto any time on the speculation. There are numberless objects which no foreigner would for a moment couceive possible to influence anyone, which affect Chinose; and the fact that we cannot trace their object does not at all prove that pone exists. There is in the whole affair undoubted evidence of preconcerted action: No mob of between 1,500 to 2,000 men would gather together in Hongkong miless there had been long previous organisation. No doubt it is likely that some joined in the spur of the moment, but a very good nucleus must have had an understanding beforehand. Few can doubt that the working up of such an excitement must have been presumption that he knew it, there was no tion which was published in last Saturday's greatly fostered by the ridiculous rumours pears that a determination has been come to up in head-quarters, a course likely to have can be sent back to his native place. SUPREME COURT.

BEFORE THE HON. CHIEF-JUSTICE SMALE. KWOE'A-SING E. PAUNCEFOTE. Return of rule "nies" for a new trial Mr. Hayliar appeared for the defendant to show, cause against the rule. He said his arguments would all turn upon one point an t the "knowledge " of defendant in doing what be bad done. The rule was btnined on four grounds: (1) that his Lordship erroneously admitted evidence as the the defendant's knowledge that the offences were the same, it being admitted that he knew the acts to be the same (2) that his Lordship mindirected the jury by leaving to them the question of knowledge that being, after the defendant's admission that he knew the facts, a question of law for the Court only; (3) that his Lord hip misdirected jury by leaving to them the question whether the offences were the same, that being ifter the defendant a admission, that the acti were the name, a question of law for the Conr only; (4) that the verdict was contrary, to the evidence and the direction of the indge. perverse. He (Mr. Hayllar) should treat the Brat. second. and fourth points as one. As t the third there must be some misapprehension for he did not think his Lordship did leave the question of the identity of offences to the jury. His Lordship said he believed he only put two things to the jury, drawing a distinction between actual knowledge and legal knowledge. which he nelled constructive knowledge, whereas it ought to have been intendment of law. Mr. Hayllar suggested presumptive knowledge as an expression frequently used. He had never questioned the fact of the identity of the offences. He had said that be was bound by his Lordebip's second judgment, deciding that hey were the same, Aud this will what his Lordship said in addressing the jury (quoting the Daily Press report):-

And then we come to the consideration of "knowing: ly," and it does seem to me that is the whole question

Therefore he did not think his Lordship left of real standing, the to the jury the question whether the crimes were the same. His Lordship said he left them the question such knowledge they must find for the plaintiff. He told them se a matter of direction that the defendant had constructive knowledge. Mr. Hayllar baid he was only dealing at prosent with the third point, which related not to the knowledge, but to the fact of the identity of the two offences. But his Lordship did not thing about it, and there was nothing about the report quoted from or in his own notes! It was not a point made by bimself. His Lordship-You said the nots were the same, but that the Attorney General did not know that the grimen were the same." Mr. Hayllar said he would leave this point now, and if it were discovered that his Lord. hip did leave the question to the jury, be would have some more to say upon it. His Lordship observed that there was a good deal, of confusion in the matter. He had felt an obligation to leave the jury the actual knowedge, and then with reference to that it was lik ly that he did leave this to them. Mr. Hayllar then proceeded to the first, second. and fourth points. He would show by sonclusive cases that the Attorney-General was not bound to have presumptive knowledge of the law. In Jones v. Randall (Cowper, p. 37) it was argued by Mr. Dunning that everyone was presumed to know the law, His Lordship had said the Attorney-General was, bound to know that his Lordship would build such and such to be the law of the Colony. But in the case quoted, Lord Munsfield and as to the on the profession if the law were so certain that everyone might know it. It was so uncertain: be added, that it cost much money to know Martindale v. Fuulkner (15 L.J., O.P., where he laid down that there was no presumpwas that ignorance of the law did not excuse a man from the consequence of his acts, as punishment in crimmal cases or damages breach of contract. He said further ignorance of the law undoubtedly exists, and could be indicially recognized, and assert that everyone was acquainted the practice of the courts, It was quite true (Mr. Hayllar continued), that in cases at the trial, and his Lordship did not concur ed by the law to have contracted with a not do so now. Again, his Lordship would not knowledge of the state of the law as fur as the contract was concerned, and it was equally to disagree with the verdict of the jury, which certain that in griminal cases it would lead to he innintained was in secondance with the ge-Sikh Policeman and the European who came endless confusion if persons were allowed to persons to persons were allowed to person and the European who came endless confusion if persons were allowed to person of the case. His Lordsbir matter of prudence and daily convenience, it could not be said to have summed up in favour would never do to allow the plea to avail. But of the defendant, and yet four jurors had held in considering the case of an Attorney-General that the justice of the case was met by a veracting in his official capacity in contravention diet for the defendant. His Lordehip would of the terms of a statute, the first presumption But interfere with that verdict except on very would be in his favour. He would be protected strong grounds. It was for Mr. Francis to have shown that his trial something more than dry techniculities less powder into the rice basket of a set of Lordship was bound to hold that the Attorney must be considered. They must look to the General, knew what was to be his Lordship's aurrounding circumstances, and the conscience decision in the second habers corpus, i.e., the of the Attorney General, and if he noted updown upon him for a certainty an amount of law. THE "LEGITIMIST" HEIR OF

signature of "Auguste de Bourbon," claims tobe in preference to the Comte de Chambord then dest representative of legitimate Monarchy in France. He declares the approsed title of the Come to be a palpable bulluonation, for the representation of legitimate hereditary Monarchy, by actual descent, is directly vested in the eldest son of Louis XVII. which Mr. Augustus Moves-"if equity is legally considered -represents." He goes on to say that although the report was that by oruelty the young King had censed to exist. this on investigation well be found was only "a political strategy," and that, instead of having quitted the mortal for the immortal, be lived in spits of his family's enemies many and many years, and that the lad who the revolutionary Givernment gave out died in the Temple was no other than a lad personating his part. On critically examining the given historical doouments to necertain on what grounds Louis XVII.'s demise in the Temple is testified Mr. Meves says it will be found to rest on assertion, but as to unquestionable suthority. that is entirely lost sight of, as no rational evidence is produced supporting the hypothesis. but truck exists proving the report to have been a fabrication. Mr. Mevee advises those who are untagonistic to admitting his title to investigate, impartially the proofs and docu ments contained in the Autobiography of Louis XVII., published at Ridgway . Piccadilly London, establishing the identity of the late reputed Mr. Augustus Meves, whose eldest son our correspondent is, as being the son of Louis XVI and Marie Autoinette. Mr. Meyes states that the first article of the Secret Treaty of Paris of 1814 explains the manner in which the Powered Europe had permitted the Count of Prevence to occupy the throne of Francenamely, "that although the high contracting dence of the death of the son of Linnis XVI. the state of Europe and its political interests require that they should place at the head of the Government of France Louis Xavier Comte de Provence, estensibly with the title of King. but being, in fact, cousidered in their secret transactions only as Regent of the kingdom for two years next ensuing, reserving to themselves during the period to obtain every possible certainty concerning a fact which indut ultimately determine who shall be the Sovereign of France," &c. POR scope and practical service this Work transfer unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been com- Simpson, Master, of 437 tons Register, wil pelled to coin to express the numerous objects have immediate despatch as above. in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in sulenso, Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are THE 4 I British Barque given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typo-graphy displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond n the tire of body, thereby effecting a vest occurry of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. The scope of the work is so great, and its utilitarian parposes so complete, that a re-Copies may be a blained at the Daily Press understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chil mass. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing China, and to the natives themselves it ex plains as bjects folly, with which very few inparties resident in England and interested in
